

Handwritten Japanese text in cursive style (sōsho), likely a narrative or a letter, written on a light-colored background with a faint floral pattern. The text is arranged in vertical columns, reading from right to left. The characters are fluid and connected, characteristic of the cursive style. The background features a repeating floral motif in a light, muted color.

